Arrival of the Steam Tender—A Fatal Accident at Sea—Mob Law at Amador.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 22.—The steamer Moses Taylor, of Webb's line, from Honolulu, arrived this morning, bringing 108 passengers, mostly from Australia and New-Zealand, bound east. The detention of the steamer was caused by the burning of a fire when eighty miles off San Francisco May 16, eastward bound, by which accident Thomas Harrison, engineer; Nicholas Fitzgerald, ill. Mooney, Sconce; Paul Nicholson, Wm. Young, seal gunners, and Oliver Hayes, watch stoker, were killed. A survey was held, when it was decided to keep the vessel on her course, and she made the remainder of the trip, using only one boiler. The dead were buried at sea. The striking miners at Amador County having compelled a suspension of all the work, not even allowing the pumps to be used to free the mines from water, and the local authorities refusing to act against the mob, the First Regiment of the National Guard, Col. W. H. L. BARNES, San Francisco, has been ordered to proceed to the scene of the disturbance to-night. The men are all provided with the Henry rifle, and instructed to disperse the mob at all hazards.

THE INDIANS.

Red Cloud's Choice—The Future Locality —Protecting Them From Whisky.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 22.—The Secretary of the Interior has received a letter from Commissioner BROOKS, of the Indian Department at Fort Laramie, June 14, in which he speaks of his visit to the Ogallalie Sioux under RED CLOUD, who, with his braves, he recently met in council. The object is to induce these Indians to remove to another section. Some of them think the White River country the best, but RED CLOUD prefers some point on the White River. Mr. BROOKS does not think that either the welfare of the Indians, or the permanence of peace, would be secured by yielding to this demand. It is impossible to keep whisky away from them, and unless its use and the presence among them of lawless men be prevented, no measures for the civilization of the Indians can be effectual. Even on the military reservation of Fort Laramie, and in spite of the efforts of Gen. SMITH and the agents to prevent the sale of whisky, the Indians are frequently intoxicated, and there is constant danger of affrays which may culminate in a serious outbreak.

A Warning Voice—Common Sense at Last.

BIG CABIN, INDIAN TERRITORY, June 22.—At an invitation of the Cherokees of this district, Col. R. C. BOUDINOTT addressed a large number of the people of that tribe to-day. He criticised the course of their delegates in not giving a full account of the actual condition of the country, and said that a crisis was upon them that they should meet as intelligent people; that however much they might regret it, a great change in their condition would soon come, and they must be prepared to meet it. He claimed there was only a conditional sale of their land west of the ninety-sixth meridian, which condition had been violated in past by the Government. He advised them to accept the situation and have their lands sectionized and sell the balance, which would yield them a million dollars, beside leaving 600 acres to each family, which in ten years would be worth $10,000, making them the richest community in the world. The speaker was listened to with marked attention. Advices from Texas state that since the recent treaties with the Indians, nearly all the cattle are being driven this way.

ANOTHER HORROR.

More Coal Mine Disasters—Forty Men Buried in a Shaft.

WILKESBARRE, June 22.—Some forty miners were temporarily imprisoned in the earth yesterday by the caving in of the slope of the Empire Mine, several miles from this place. All were rescued, and are expected to recover from the effects of the foul air inhaled during their confinement. DAVID JENKINS and JOHN DAVIS were severely burned by an explosion of fire-damp in the Wilkesbarre Coal and Iron Company's mine at Ashley yesterday. The former is not expected to recover.

The Southern Rural Congress at St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, June 22.—The Turf Congress meeting was resumed today. The weather was intensely hot, the mercury being at 96°. The first race was for a sweepstakes for three-year-olds, mile heats, $50 entrance, $400 added. There were six starters. The first heat was taken by Miss Powell; the second by MOSHER'S colt by Zero, and the third and fourth by Orwell Dancer. Time—1:47, 1:46, 1:51½ and 2:01. The second race was a mile and a half dash, free for all, for a purse of $300: it was won by Allie Vela, beating Vidocque, Joe Allen, Marion, Ashdale and Rapid Rapper. Time—2:44½.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

The Political Guillotine Dressed—Reorganization of Republicans.

CONCORD, N. H., June 22.—The cassating in the House of Mr. CROCKETT, of Londonderry, was done without opposition, as it was clearly shown that the voluble polls of the town entitled them to only one Representative. He was allowed mileage and per diem to date. Most of the afternoon session was occupied in a warm discussion of a resolution called up from the table by Mr. BURNHAM (Democrat) for the removal, by address, of Hon. SAMUEL UPTON, Police Justice of Manchester. The resolution was finally referred to a committee of five from Manchester, appointed by the Speaker. A resolve to remove, by address, the Sheriff of Rockingham County having passed, CALEB MOULTON, of Hampton, was then presented on a yea and nay vote, and carried by 181 yeas to 129 nays. The ax is now in earnest being laid to the tree.

NATIONAL MUSICAL CONGRESS.

Convention in Boston—Its Composition and Object—What Has Actually Been Accomplished—Character of the Meetings.

From Our Own Correspondent.

BOSTON, Wednesday, June 21, 1871.

The "National Musical Congress" is holding its third annual Convention in this city this week in the Music Hall with a good attendance. This is an organization composed of leading musicians of the country, conductors, choral societies of different States, amateurs, and enthusiasts for worthy though ambitious objects: To bind in one brotherhood all the musicians of the United States; to aid and promote the formation of choral societies wherever sufficient singers can be found to combine for practice and performance; to urge the universality of musical instruction by note in the public schools throughout the entire country; to furnish musical instruction for working men and women; to establish a standard of musical taste in sacred and secular composition, and to encourage and assist native talent. From the reports that have been read, it seems that thus far only one or two of those great objects have been attained, and that the association has not got beyond the enemy-reading stage; but the members appear earnest and zealous, and may achieve something of moment by-and-by. Mr. WILLIAM MASON, of New-York, is the President of the Congress, but he is absent from these sessions on account of the severe illness of his father, the venerable LOWELL MASON, and accordingly one of the Vice-Presidents, Dr. L. H. SOUTHARD, of Baltimore, President of the Peabody Academy there, presides. There are present over a thousand delegates from choral societies, among them representatives from the Union Musical Association of New-York, and the Choral Union of Indianapolis, Ind., and quite a number of New-Yorkers; but the leaders seem to be Dr. EBEN TOURJEE, P. S. GILMORE, and Gen. HENRY K. OLIVER, of Salem, Mass.

The Convention opened yesterday and will close to-morrow. Three sessions are held daily, the only of which is a business meeting; the others are entirely musical, and so form a series of concerts which are exceedingly attractive. At the opening session, yesterday, Gov. CLAFLIN made a speech of welcome in behalf of the State, in which he asserted that the "Great Peace Jubilee" raised the standard of music, and taxed all the people the necessity of a more thorough instruction in the art. He believed that the next Legislature would be ready to frame a law making instruction in music compulsory in the schools of the large towns and cities in the State, and this through the influence exerted by the Peace Jubilee. In regard to the effect of music upon the young, the Governor said the various educational and reformatory institutions of the State understood it very well, for one of the first things introduced into such places, for the benefit of the young, was music, and if there were a lot of rough boys from some of the worst districts of great cities, they found it a great deal easier and pleasanter to rule them through the musician's baton than through the master's ferule.

The main discussions at the business meetings have been on the best methods to promote the objects and aims of the Congress. Gen. OLIVER has told of the successful formation of choirs of societies among the operatives of mills in eastern Massachusetts, and several others have spoken of the beneficial effects of music in reformatory institutions, and urged the adoption of some systematic plan of action. Nothing has as yet been agreed upon, and it is probable that nothing beyond suggesting will this time be done toward spreading the benefits of music among the masses.

The musical sessions of the Congress began yesterday afternoon with a concert of "jubilee music"—music sung at Boston's big jubilee—by a chorus of nearly a thousand voices, composed of the delegates from choral societies present, accompanied by an orchestra numbering between thirty and forty performers, including the members of the Mendelssohn Quintet Club. The programme included selections from "The Messiah," "Elijah," and "The Creation," Dr. OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES' Peace Jubilee Hymn, a cornet solo by Mr. ARNDELL, who ranks next to LEVY, and soprano and tenor solos, the former by a Miss LEWIS, an English amateur, who has a pleasing voice, and the latter by Mr. W. H. WHITNEY. Today the concerts have been by the children from the public schools, with illustrations of the method of teaching in the various grades. To-morrow afternoon there will be vocal and instrumental music "by leading artists, an orchestra, and the great organ," and in the evening "The Creation" is to be performed by the chorus of a thousand voices. The concerts thus far have been well attended by audiences of decided musical culture, and have been worthy of such attendance.

Last evening a memorial service of officers of the Congress deceased during the past year, and biographical sketches of CARL ANSCHUETZ, CARLO BASSINI, Col. CHICKERING and C. M. WYMAN were read. That on CARL ANSCHUETZ was written by THEODORE HAGER, and was the most interesting. Regarding his bluntness and abhorrence of sham, the following was told of him: When asked to assist at the Beethoven speculation in New-York, he answered: "What! I shall lend my hand to such humbug? No, Sir! I had rather starve." "You are a genius," he said to a celebrated reformer at a concert one evening, "but you have sung to-night like a pig." He was on the occasion of a Court concert at Windsor that the master of ceremonies approached him with the inquiry: "Herr ANSCHUETZ, where are your gloves?" "In my pocket, my Lord." "But won't you put them on?" "No, my Lord." "I never conduct with gloves." "But, Herr ANSCHUETZ, think of Her Majesty. You cannot conduct before her without gloves." "Well, my Lord, I cannot, I cannot;" whereupon he laid down his baton. Fortunately Prince ALBERT appeared, and hearing of the difficulty, laughingly said: "Oh, let him go. He is a queer fish. I will make it all right with Her Majesty."

ANSCHUETZ'S success as a conductor of German opera in New-York, was noted, and his devotion to the music of BEETHOVEN, and his firm adhesion to the old school of music, were marked. This evening a paper is to be read on the "Four Great Oratorios," and selections from them are to be given, and to-morrow evening another paper is to be read on "The Life and Times of Mendelssohn," and selections from his compositions are to be given.

The absence from the meetings of the Congress of the representatives of "the press" in this city, the non-appearance of the Handel and Haydn Society among the choral organizations for instance, is noteworthy. It seems to prove to some that the Congress does not have their sympathy. But it may be possible that those representatives of the musical culture of the town are somewhat jealous of the fact that the Great Peace Jubilee was a success, and are holding aloof to let time prove its safety. Boston hich-brows are more jealous of their company and their reputation than those of any other city.

THURSDAY MORNING, May 22.

The Congress, today, elected for President JOHN SEFFERSON, President of the United Choral Societies of New-York; Corresponding and Recording Secretary, Dr. EBEN TOURJEE, of Boston; Treasurer, W. R. STRELTON, of Newton, Mass., with a long list of Vice-Presidents and directors. The Congress closed its session today.

THE YACHT REGATTA.

Another Gala Day in the Bay of New-York.

Annual Race of the New-York Yacht Club—The Contest Partially Marred by a Mistake—The Result Still in Doubt.

Nearly every one who has witnessed a good horse race is aware of the intense interest which centers around the favorite animals. The same sort of exhilarating excitement exhibits itself with equal vigor on the water when a fleet of fast yachts engage in a contest for excellent honors, and if the enthusiasm is confined to a more narrow circle than the turf sports, the enjoyment is much greater because of the more skillful management which is required in handling a racing vessel. Within a few years, however, yachting has rapidly advanced in public favor through the daring and violent-ous deeds of American yachtsmen, and it has now become no unusual thing to witness vast crowds of people eagerly watching a yacht-race, and deeply absorbed in the result, although not comprehending many of the technical features connected with it. Yesterday's event among the fleet of the New-York Yacht Club, the first of yachting organizations, was arranged with considerable pains, and the excitement over it was shared by thousands of spectators. The occasion was the annual regatta of the Club, for which twenty-six schooner and sloop yachts were entered, among the number being several of world-wide celebrity. From an early hour in the morning until midday, the East and North Rivers were filled with a great variety of steam and sailing vessels, en route toward the Narrows, with large numbers of passengers on board, bound for the race. The appearance of the Harbor below Governor's Island at 11 o'clock resembled the spectacle which accompanied the famous America Cup race of last August. Here were stationed nearly 200 vessels of all descriptions, from the small-sized sail-boat to the capacious double-decked steamer with its heavy load of passengers extending over nearly every available portion of its space. The water was so nearly covered with craft as to render locomotion extremely difficult. On the lower edge of the mass of vessels was a long line of rakish-looking schooners and sloops anchored in the Narrows abreast of Van-derbilt's Landing, Staten Island, with mainsails, jibs and topsails all set. These were the yachts which were to participate in the race. The following is a list of the yachts which started:

SCHOONERS.

Vivian	Matthew Livingston	74	797
Comet	Wilhelm Lange	70	1,000
Pearleen	J. R. Maxwell
Corning	R. D. Tucker

There were three separate sets of prizes to be sailed for; the first being a Club prize for schooners of the value of $200, and one for first-class sloops of the value of $150. A prize of $100 was also offered in each second-class sloops; but there were no yachts competing for it. Commodore JAMES GORDON BENNETT, Jr., offered two challenge cups for prizes, one being for schooners and the other for sloops. In addition to these there were two subscription cups contributed by members, one for schooners, of the value of $500, and one for sloops, worth $250.

At 11 o'clock, the time designed for the start, all the yachts had been assigned their positions. The Restering was on the north side, with the Tidal Wave, Vesta, Idler, Foam, Magic, Rambler, Columbus and others on the lee. The Rambler was to the extra leeward, and nearest the Staten Island shore.

THE START.

Considerable delay occurred in getting the yachts off, the first signal not being fired until 11:20 o'clock, the second gun sounded from the Seth Low, the steamer chartered to the Regatta Committee and the members of the Press, at 11:30 A. M., and the yachts commenced getting under weigh. The Peerless was the first to move, being quickly followed by the Palmer and Halcyon, and the others in rapid succession. Then all stood on the port tack, the wind blowing fair from south-east, with the tide at high water slack. The dock at Fort Tompkins was passed by Kaiser Wilhelm at 11:34:10, with the Addie two lengths in her rear, followed by the Vixen, at 11:35:30; Tidal Wave, 11:39; Foam, 12:01; Wandering, 12:06. The Magic kept nearest to the windward, and skimmed down the Bay in fine style. The Tidal Wave tried to overtake her and get to windward of her but failed, after some very sharp maneuvering. When abreast of the east end of Coney Island, the Wanderer had taken the lead of the Magic, the latter still keeping the first place among the schooners. On the sailing of the Wanderer and the Columbia was closely watched, both being new yachts, and never having before appeared in any race. In rounding the South-west Spit buoy, which is a mile distance, what happened, which caused the judge a great deal of embarrassment. It appeared that the small boat assigned to the time-keeper had anchored at buoy No. 2½, about an eighth of a mile east of the spar buoy usually designated as the South-west Spit buoy. Many of the yachts, deceived by the presence of the time-keeper's boat and the Club steamer, the Middleton, at the former buoy, went around it instead of making for the buoy further to the westward. The Peerless was the first to make this mistake, and was followed by several other yachts, whose time was not taken. The yachts which rounded the regular buoy were as follows:

	H.	M.	S.		H.	M.	S.
Wanderer	1	18	20	Eva	1	22	40
Flemming	1	21	30	Idler	1	22	50
Corning	1	21	35	Palmer	1	22	50

After witnessing these vessels round the buoy, the judge's boat steamed toward Scotland Lightship, outside of Sandy Hook. This was rounded in the following order:

	H.	M.	S.		H.	M.	S.
Comina	2	4	45	Wanderer	2	14	10
Peerless	2	7	45	Dauntless	2	15	20
Palmer	2	7	55	Madeleine	2	15	25
Gracie	2	8	30	Fleetwing	2	17	10
Addie	2	9	45	Halcyon	2	18	15
Tidal Wave	2	10	30	Eva	2	20	40
Vixen	2	11	30	Idler	2	22	20
Magic	2	13	40	Sappho	2	26	30

The Dauntless came in collision with the Madeleine in rounding the light-ship, and carried away her foretopmast back-stay. The following was the order in which the yachts reached the home stake-boat.

Name.	Time. H.	M.	S.	Name.	Time. H.	M.	S.
Tidal Wave	3	0	10	Gracie	3	37	0
Columbia	3	1	42	Coming	3	46	30
Palmer	3	27	45	Halcyon	3	51	4
Addie	3	31	45	Rambler	3	59	4
Magic	3	32	31	Dauntless	4	0	10
Idler	3	32	38	Fleetwing	4	7	30
Peerless	3	35	20	Sappho	4	8	42
Wanderer	3	35	40	Tarolinta	4	9	12
Kaiser Wilhelm	3	37	35	Madeleine	4	15	0
Vixen	3	37	54	Aarne	4	47	00
Alice	3	43	0

The judges were unable to determine which were the winning yachts, but will meet to-day to hear protests. It is probable that the Idler or the Tidal Wave will be declared the winning schooners, and the Vixen or the Coming the winning sloops.

Long Branch Thronged—The President Gets a View of the Regatta.

LONG BRANCH, June 22.—A large number of visitors arrived here today to witness the New-York Yacht Club race. President GRANT and wife arrived by the steamer Jesse Hoyt. While they were coming down the Bay the yachts were making their home tack, and the President and Mrs. GRANT accepted the invitation of GEORGE W. BENTLEY, manager of the New-Jersey Southern Railroad, to witness the yachts from the pilot-house. Arriving at the Branch the President immediately proceeded to his cottage. Fish and Frank GRANT, JOHN HOEY and wife, and a large number of Fashionable Grant's friends, sailed in West Point, went out to the rendezvous off Sandy Hook to witness the yacht race. On Saturday a grand regatta takes place here for LESTER WALLACK'S cup. About twenty yachts will race. The yachts will start from Sandy Hook, sail to Long Branch, turn a stake-boat anchored off here and return. The distance is about twenty-four miles.

Synopsis and Probabilities.

WASHINGTON, June 23—1 A. M.—The warning remains without material change on the Pacific coast. The Sacramento has fallen in the North-west and Mississippi Valley, and has risen but again fallen in the Middle and Eastern States. An area of low pressure now exists south and east of Lake Ontario. The temperature has risen slightly in the lower lake and Middle States, and cool north-west winds have prevailed on the Atlantic coast; light winds in the interior and on the Gulf and lakes; cloudy and threatening weather, with occasional light rains, have been reported from Michigan to the Middle States.

PROBABILITIES.

Threatening weather, with occasional light rains, is probable for Friday morning in the Eastern States, where fresh south-east winds will probably prevail during the day. Falling barometer and cloudy weather is probable for the Gulf coast. No serious disturbance is apprehended for our coasts.

City Meteorological Report.

The following observations show the temperature, &c., yesterday, at the Central Park Meteorological Bureau:

Some Gossip About Mr. Vallandigham—His Aspirations and Disappointments.

From a readable sketch of Mr. VALLANDIGHAM, written by "Mack" and published in the Chicago Republican, we quote the following paragraphs:

"Mr. VALLANDIGHAM would have been a great statesman if he had not been so great a politician. He was fond of popular applause, fond of plaudits, fond of power. He was devoted to the Democratic Party, because he believed himself to be the Democratic Party, and because he always had faith in a certain position which would come during his lifetime and give him fame and position. Four years ago he felt well assured of a seat in the United States Senate—which is had often told me was the goal of his ambition; though I believe he would have regarded it rather as the stepping-stone to the Presidency. The election of THURMAN was the great disappointment of his life. It produced a wonderful change in his character, making him more selfish, more distrustful, and more venomous than ever. Conversing with him on the subject a year ago, he said: 'That thing cannot be repeated. The next Democratic Senator of Ohio will elect me to the Senate, or he is the eternal God it will not elect any other Democrat. I am tired of working for the benefit of others.' This was in reply to a suggestion from me that PENDLETON would be chosen in the event of a Democratic success this Fall.

There is a fad connected with the political history of the country during the administration of ANDREW JOHNSON which I am astonished has never got into public print, considering the activity and energy of modern journalism. In the Spring of 1866, immediately after the veto of the Civil Rights bill Mr. VALLANDIGHAM repaired to Washington inspired with the idea of revolutionizing the party politics of the time, and restoring the Democracy to complete power. He had gone so far as to draft articles of agreement, in which it was stipulated that the President should give the patronage of the Government in the Northern and Western States to certain men therein named, who, in turn, should actively assist themselves in behalf of the measures of the then existing Administration. It is unnecessary to say that Mr. VALLANDIGHAM'S name figured conspicuously in the document as the author of the scheme. I have never seen the original of this; but I saw what Mr. VALLANDIGHAM said was a "rough draft" of it. I was in Washington at the time of Mr. VALLANDIGHAM'S arrival; he sent a note to me requesting me to call and see him, which I did. He had me shut the door, when he handed me, on the President, explained his mission, and left the document with him; and asked me to call on the President that evening and get his views of the matter. I complied; but I found the President quite unwilling to agree to the terms of the document. He objected to men who were named in it, and especially to Mr. VALLANDIGHAM himself as obnoxious to the people, and likely to do more harm than good by their support of any Administration. I called on Mr. VALLANDIGHAM next day, and told him plainly what the President had said. He seemed to exhibit little or no feeling, and that he was unpopular. He insisted that he represented 2,000,000 of votes in the North, and that the support of these votes could never be obtained by any Administration that disregarded him, or to excite him very much to be told that he was unpopular. He insisted that he represented 2,000,000 of votes in the North, and that the support of these votes could never be obtained by any Administration that disregarded him, or sacrificed him to a 'back seat.' From that day forward he never liked ANDREW JOHNSON.

If his life may be called a failure—and, measured by his aspirations, I think it was—it was attributable in no small degree to his personal selfishness. I told him, one day, that if you were as well liked as you thought you were, and could be President of the United States, if the Democratic Party ever came into power. His reply was a long dissertation on the causes of what I had called his unpopularity or selfishness; and it was to the effect that he had been badly used—that he had not been advanced in the party in proportion to his deserts—that he had furnished the brains to make other men leaders; and that he was sick and tired of that sort of thing, and must henceforth look out for himself only."

A PROPHECY IN CHARLESTON.

The editor of the Charleston (S. C.) Courier, who was personally acquainted with Mr. VALLANDIGHAM, contributes the following:

"We were delegates together to the Democratic National Convention of 1860, whose dissolution, in the contest between DOUGLAS and BRECKENRIDGE on the character and rights of slavery in the Territories, was the prelude to the late civil war. On one occasion, in this city Representatives LOGAN, of Illinois, LANDERS, of Wiscon

FOR OUR CORRESPONDENT.

From our own Correspondent.

POLITICALLY speaking, we have been kept in a constant state of anxiety for the last week or two, which the issue of the Republican and Conservative elections will soon relieve. The Empire has not yet entirely disappeared, and the Republic cannot be said to be established. The Empire was a despotism, but it was a despotism which had the support of the majority of the people, and which was in the habit of exercising power with ease and regularity. The Republic is a despotism of the few, which has to struggle with the difficulties of a transition period, and which is in the habit of exercising power with hesitation and timidity. The Empire was the despotism of the Court, the Republic is the despotism of the Clubs. The Empire had the support of the army, the Republic has not. The Empire had the support of the Church, the Republic has not. The Empire had the support of the Bourse, the Republic has not. The Empire had the support of the Chambers, the Republic has not. NEWS OF THE DAY.

EUROPE.

A train on the Leipsic Railway, in Germany, carrying Pomeranian troops home from France, ran off the track yesterday, killing two officers and twenty-one privates, and injuring one officer and forty privates.... The bill authorizing the construction of a horse railroad in London, was rejected last night in the House of Commons. The Chancellor of the Exchequer stated that it is impossible to discontinue the pension of $2,500 a year to the descendants of WILLIAM PENN in consequence of the American Revolution. Germany, Austria and Russia, it is said, have come to an understanding for the preservation of the peace of Europe.... The Spanish Minister for the Colonies says Spain will retain Cuba as long as she has the power. The Cabinet only await the adoption of the address to the Crown to resign, in consequence of a crisis.... The Italian Chambers will adjourn this week. The idea of holding a short session in Rome has been abandoned. The Minister of the Interior has ordered the dissolution of all chapters of the International Society in Italy.... The Duc D'AUMALE landed in Calais yesterday, and was expected in Paris last night. Gen. MCMAHON has given up the intention to resign the command of the army. M. MAGNE, Ex-Minister of Finance under NAPOLEON, is a candidate for the Assembly from Dordogne. Gen. FAIDHERBE and M. THIERSOT, Republicans, and MM. DAVOUSCHAL and DUPONT, are candidates from the Department of the North. LISSAGARAY, the Communist, is not dead, but is under arrest. It is said that M. GAMBETTA refuses to acknowledge the election of the Assembly, so that body has no legal existence. The Ministry of Finance will soon be re-established in Paris, in the LOUVRE.

GENERAL.

Late advices from San Domingo state that President BAEZ is making great military preparations. He has received an invoice of Enfield rifles from the States. CABRAL is also said to be making extensive military arrangements.

RED CLOUD and his Sioux (the Ogallalahs) design to dwell on the White River, but the Indians are fast introducing whisky are so great that they are frequently intoxicated, and trouble is apt to grow out of it.

On Wednesday a collision occurred on the Nashville and North-western Railroad, near McEwen's Station, between a freight and passenger train. R. M. VAN, a passenger, was killed. W. S. COOPER, baggage-master, and JAMES BOMPO, brakeman, were badly injured.

The Ohio Platform.

The action of the Ohio Republicans was looked forward to with interest, not unmingled with anxiety, by the best men of the party throughout the country. It was felt that the present occasion was a preliminary test of the capacity of the party to move steadily forward, without breaking into, keeping in its ranks both the deliberate and the impetuous. Judging by the synopsis of the resolutions which has reached us, and by the light thrown on the action of the Convention by the antecedents and speculations of Gen. NOYES, and by the speech of Senator SHERMAN, the country will be justified in believing that the Republicans of Ohio fairly represent the Republicans of the nation, and that no real need, no live issue has been treated by them with neglect or evasion.

In speaking with pride of the past of the party, identified with the highest triumphs and severest trials of our country, the Ohio platform but expresses the just and solid confidence for which the past affords ample warrant. It is true that mere gratitude is not sufficient capital for a party to make new ventures with. But it is equally true that promises for the future are judged by performances in the past, and that as long as a party maintains a substantial unity it is inevitably and rightly judged by the nature and extent of its actual achievements. Laurels win no new victories, but the army that has its banners wreathed with them has fewer desertions and more recruits than one whose record is, like that of the Democracy, stained with cowardice and treason. In turning its attention to the present and future, the Republican Party has a right to challenge the closest scrutiny of its previous career.

But the Republicans of Ohio do not content themselves with retrospect. They undertake unconditionally and clearly to meet the demands which steadily-developing public opinion makes upon them. They emphatically dissent from that view which would make the unity the merriment of extreme protection to special industries and limited sentence of the country. They yield gracefully but decidedly to the conviction which has been gaining ground for these past four or five years, that the duties on imports have been, and, even after considerable modifications, still are unequal in their operation. They pledge the party to the service of making them bear evenly upon all industries, and upon every section of the Commonwealth.

The Ohio platform also meets the other pressing requisition of enlightened public opinion, that the civil service shall be reformed, and, in approving heartily the practical measures adopted by the President, shows the sense of the party in the West that the work shall be done with all possible thoroughness and dispatch. It is well to remember that the purification and reorganization of the civil service is a comparatively recent demand. It has grown up wholly since the war, and in a time when the most engrossing questions resulting from the war, and involving the peace, order and prosperity of the country, were pressing upon the public mind with overwhelming urgency. It belongs moreover to a class of questions with which the American people are somewhat unfamiliar, and to which they have given but little study, and enjoyed practically very little experience. Bearing these things in mind, the temper of the Republican Party toward the reform must be accepted as highly salutary and promising. If it is not all that the most ardent and best-informed students of this question would desire, it is quite as assuring as, all things considered, could have been expected. We need not say that a deliberate expression from a Republican Convention, in connection with the practical step taken by a Republican Congress and President, is worth a thousand of the most explicit vows of the Democracy. Civil service reform in the mouths of the party that includes Tammany and which Tammany controls, is a bitter jest.

If the platform of the Ohio Republicans is less advanced than the opinion of some portions of the East on the question of amnesty in the South, the Southern leaders have themselves to thank for it. It is JEFFERSON DAVIS and TOOMBS and STEPHENS that have checked the growth of popular sentiment in favor of amnesty, and it is not to be denied that since the incontinent display of rebellious feeling on the part of these men, and the reception it has met at the South, the Ohio Convention would have ceased to be representative had it made any unqualified demand for such a measure.

These points, and many others, were ably treated by Senator SHERMAN in his speech on the evening of the Convention. With admirable clearness and energy he exposed the flimsy pretensions of the Democracy, and pointed out the specific claims of the Republican Party to be trusted with the execution of any reforms desired by the people. He showed that long service had not made him dull to the changes of popular sentiment, and that he, and the body of which he is one of the veteran members, are prepared to advance steadily and practically to the realization of any well-defined popular purpose. His frank though moderate allusion to the advanced positions of the Convention is one more of the many signs that the Republican Party is to continue to be, as it has long been, the representative and therefore the governing party of the nation. It is only necessary to add that in most essential respects the position of the Iowa Republicans, whose victory is certain, [illegible] face of a determined fight—a fact which adds to the significance of both.

Rebellion in the Board of Aldermen.

We are pained to learn that in our estimable Board of Aldermen, there is an incipient rebellion brewing against the select four who constitute the magnates of the Ring. The Aldermen have never been satisfied with the condition in which the new charter left them. For, whereas, an Alderman used to be a "City Father," and could walk about among his constituents with an air of conscious dignity and power, he now finds himself reduced to an insignificant cipher—a mere clerk to register the decrees of the quartet oligarchy whom he is bound to obey, and in whose plunder he is not allowed to share. To be sure, the present Alderman is also a Supervisor, and is allowed to draw a salary in both capacities—four thousand dollars for the one, and two thousand dollars for the other. But what is six thousand dollars a year—a mere bagatelle; barely two hundred dollars per session, a sum which will scarcely find him in gros, to say nothing of the diamond pin and the American Club badge, which form absolutely indispensable ornaments of every Aldermanic or Supervisorial period. Besides, the office of Supervisor, under the new charter, is not only profitless, but actually humiliating. The absolute veto power vested in the Mayor, who is the presiding officer, reduces the other members of the Board to so many nonentities. Mayor HALL is the Board, and an individual Supervisor is merely one in a collection of fifteen nobodies.

It will readily be seen that the chances for a "rake" in a Board so constituted must be very slim. The Mayor, to be sure, can secure that object whenever he sees fit, but no other member of the Board can "rake" a dollar without his consent. It was inevitable that such a one-sided and partial state of affairs should eventually breed troubles. Human nature is too weak to endure it. Whenever you hear one man calling another man a "hog," it may safely be presumed that a crisis is at hand. Now this is just the unsavory epithet that one begins to hear bandied about in the precincts of the City Hall. The beauties of the new charter begin to be appreciated. Aldermen and Supervisors do not hesitate to declare that the whole thing is a nuisance, and ought to be abolished. TWEED, SWEENY, CONNOLLY and HALL monopolize all the swill, and leave the lesser animals to go lean and hungry. They occupy "palatial" galleries and feed out of golden troughs, while the Aldermanic herd are compelled to "root" for a living and wallow in the mire. Various attempts have been made to remedy this state of things and bring about a more equal distribution of the public pap, but they have hitherto failed. One more attempt is now being made, and if this, too, fails, we are assured there will be "war to the knife." The Aldermen have had a private caucus, and have appointed a committee of three to wait upon SWEENY, CONNOLLY and HALL ("Boss" TWEED they say is "all right,") and to demand their legitimate share of the spoils. They insist upon being allowed to put through their Aldermanic "jobs," undisturbed by the "Ring," or else upon being taken into the "Ring," and sharing in their "rakes." One or other alternative must be accepted, and that speedily. The "close corporation" of four "municipal thieves," they say, has had its day. There must be a "new deal," or there will be such an explosion among our City politicians as will shake the foundations of the new Court-house.

A Shameful Scandal.

An extraordinary and disgraceful scene is reported by late English papers as having occurred at St. Leonard's, Bilston. It appears that the householders of that town were recently called upon to elect a perpetual curate. Such an election had not been held for thirty-five years, when the death of Rev. Mr. FLETCHER rendered it necessary. There were two opposing candidates, Rev. Mr. WARD, who had been curate in charge during the last months of the life of the deceased incumbent, and Rev. C. LEE, the vicar of Holy Trinity, Haverstock Hill, London. The poll lasted two days, resulting in the election of the latter gentleman by a large majority; but the occasion was signalized by proceedings so strange and painful that it is not to be wondered at that they have been followed by an outburst of public reprobation.

That colors should have distinguished the opposing sides, voters have been brought up in placarded cabs, and that there should have been much marching, shouting and waving of banners, as is generally the case at Parliamentary elections in England, seems unbecoming enough for such an occasion, but perhaps was unavoidable. But, besides this, drunken women paraded the town, dressed in the colors of one side, while bands of Amazons in the interest of the other side swept through the streets and thrashed those whom they met wearing opposition colors. Pails of swill, bricks and stones were freely hurled at each other by the angry contestants. One of the reverend candidates was burned in effigy by the partisans of the other. Windows were broken and other mischief systematically perpetrated in all parts of the town; and finally—the leading London journal is our authority for the statement—only the active exertions of a heavy body of Police "prevented this election from leading to great rioting and injury to life and property."

What renders this outbreak more remarkable is the fact that there was no "treating" at the election. That some people were drunk is evident from the accounts of their actions, and this was notably true of a number of women; but the indiscriminate "free liquor" that sometimes flows at Parliamentary elections was wanting on this occasion, and the turbulent proceedings seem therefore to have been more surprising to the commentators of the Press. We do not wonder that these writers seemed to be so [illegible]

[illegible] Lieutenant-Governor, and JACKSON TEMPLE and SELDEN S. WRIGHT, for Judges of the Supreme Court.

It is the intensely arid little hope of the Feejee Islands, for the Malay Archipelago, which have been destroyed by a hurricane, and not the cotton seed of the districts of Nandia, in India, as reported yesterday. The loss is estimated at $500,000 sterling, and the planters will not recover from the loss for years to come.

A collision occurred on Wednesday on the Nashville and North-western Railroad, near McEwen's Station, between a freight and passenger train. R. M. VAN, a passenger, was killed. W. S. COOPER, baggage-master, and JAMES BOMPO, brakeman, were badly injured.

The Ohio Platform.

The action of the Ohio Republicans was looked forward to with interest, not unmingled with anxiety, by the best men of the party throughout the country. It was felt that the present occasion was a preliminary test of the capacity of the party to move steadily forward, without breaking into, keeping in its ranks both the deliberate and the impetuous. Judging by the synopsis of the resolutions which has reached us, and by the light thrown on the action of the Convention by the antecedents and speculations of Gen. NOYES, and by the speech of Senator SHERMAN, the country will be justified in believing that the Republicans of Ohio fairly represent the Republicans of the nation, and that no real need, no live issue has been treated by them with neglect or evasion.

In speaking with pride of the past of the party, identified with the highest triumphs and severest trials of our country, the Ohio platform but expresses the just and solid confidence for which the past affords ample warrant. It is true that mere gratitude is not sufficient capital for a party to make new ventures with. But it is equally true that promises for the future are judged by performances in the past, and that as long as a party maintains a substantial unity it is inevitably and rightly judged by the nature and extent of its actual achievements. Laurels win no new victories, but the army that has its banners wreathed with them has fewer desertions and more recruits than one whose record is, like that of the Democracy, stained with cowardice and treason. In turning its attention to the present and future, the Republican Party has a right to challenge the closest scrutiny of its previous career.

But the Republicans of Ohio do not content themselves with retrospect. They unhesitatingly and clearly to meet the demands which steadily-developing public opinion makes upon them. They emphatically dissent from that view which would make the unity the merriment of extreme protection to special industries and limited sentence of the country. They yield gracefully but decidedly to the conviction which has been gaining ground for these past four or five years, that the duties on imports have been, and, even after considerable modifications, still are unequal in their operation. They pledge the party to the service of making them bear evenly upon all industries, and upon every section of the Commonwealth.

The Ohio platform also meets the other pressing requisition of enlightened public opinion, that the civil service shall be reformed, and, in approving heartily the practical measures adopted by the President, shows the sense of the party in the West that the work shall be done with all possible thoroughness and dispatch. It is well to remember that the purification and reorganization of the civil service is a comparatively recent demand. It has grown up wholly since the war, and in a time when the most engrossing questions resulting from the war, and involving the peace, order and prosperity of the country, were pressing upon the public mind with overwhelming urgency. It belongs moreover to a class of questions with which the American people are somewhat unfamiliar, and to which they have given but little study, and enjoyed practically very little experience. Bearing these things in mind, the temper of the Republican Party toward the reform must be accepted as highly salutary and promising. If it is not all that the most ardent and best-informed students of this question would desire, it is quite as assuring as, all things considered, could have been expected. We need not say that a deliberate expression from a Republican Convention, in connection with the practical step taken by a Republican Congress and President, is worth a thousand of the most explicit vows of the Democracy. Civil service reform in the mouths of the party that includes Tammany and which Tammany controls, is a bitter jest.

If the platform of the Ohio Republicans is less advanced than the opinion of some portions of the East on the question of amnesty in the South, the Southern leaders have themselves to thank for it. It is JEFFERSON DAVIS and TOOMBS and STEPHENS that have checked the growth of popular sentiment in favor of amnesty, and it is not to be denied that since the incontinent display of rebellious feeling on the part of these men, and the reception it has met at the South, the Ohio Convention would have ceased to be representative had it made any unqualified demand for such a measure.

These points, and many others, were ably treated by Senator SHERMAN in his speech on the evening of the Convention. With admirable clearness and energy he exposed the flimsy pretensions of the Democracy, and pointed out the specific claims of the Republican Party to be trusted with the execution of any reforms desired by the people. He showed that long service had not made him dull to the changes of popular sentiment, and that he, and the body of which he is one of the veteran members, are prepared to advance steadily and practically to the realization of any well-defined popular purpose. His frank though moderate allusion to the advanced positions of the Convention is one more of the many signs that the Republican Party is to continue to be, as it has long been, the representative and therefore the governing party of the nation. It is only necessary to add that in most essential respects the position of the Iowa Republicans, whose victory is certain, [illegible] face of a determined fight—a fact which adds to the significance of both.

Rebellion in the Board of Aldermen.

We are pained to learn that in our estimable Board of Aldermen, there is an incipient rebellion brewing against the select four who constitute the magnates of the Ring. The Aldermen have never been satisfied with the condition in which the new charter left them. For, whereas, an Alderman used to be a "City Father," and could walk about among his constituents with an air of conscious dignity and power, he now finds himself reduced to an insignificant cipher—a mere clerk to register the decrees of the quartet oligarchy whom he is bound to obey, and in whose plunder he is not allowed to share. To be sure, the present Alderman is also a Supervisor, and is allowed to draw a salary in both capacities—four thousand dollars for the one, and two thousand dollars for the other. But what is six thousand dollars a year—a mere bagatelle; barely two hundred dollars per session, a sum which will scarcely find him in gros, to say nothing of the diamond pin and the American Club badge, which form absolutely indispensable ornaments of every Aldermanic or Supervisorial period. Besides, the office of Supervisor, under the new charter, is not only profitless, but actually humiliating. The absolute veto power vested in the Mayor, who is the presiding officer, reduces the other members of the Board to so many nonentities. Mayor HALL is the Board, and an individual Supervisor is merely one in a collection of fifteen nobodies.

It will readily be seen that the chances for a "rake" in a Board so constituted must be very slim. The Mayor, to be sure, can secure that object whenever he sees fit, but no other member of the Board can "rake" a dollar without his consent. It was inevitable that such a one-sided and partial state of affairs should eventually breed troubles. Human nature is too weak to endure it. Whenever you hear one man calling another man a "hog," it may safely be presumed that a crisis is at hand. Now this is just the unsavory epithet that one begins to hear bandied about in the precincts of the City Hall. The beauties of the new charter begin to be appreciated. Aldermen and Supervisors do not hesitate to declare that the whole thing is a nuisance, and ought to be abolished. TWEED, SWEENY, CONNOLLY and HALL monopolize all the swill, and leave the lesser animals to go lean and hungry. They occupy "palatial" galleries and feed out of golden troughs, while the Aldermanic herd are compelled to "root" for a living and wallow in the mire. Various attempts have been made to remedy this state of things and bring about a more equal distribution of the public pap, but they have hitherto failed. One more attempt is now being made, and if this, too, fails, we are assured there will be "war to the knife." The Aldermen have had a private caucus, and have appointed a committee of three to wait upon SWEENY, CONNOLLY and HALL ("Boss" TWEED they say is "all right,") and to demand their legitimate share of the spoils. They insist upon being allowed to put through their Aldermanic "jobs," undisturbed by the "Ring," or else upon being taken into the "Ring," and sharing in their "rakes." One or other alternative must be accepted, and that speedily. The "close corporation" of four "municipal thieves," they say, has had its day. There must be a "new deal," or there will be such an explosion among our City politicians as will shake the foundations of the new Court-house.

A Shameful Scandal.

An extraordinary and disgraceful scene is reported by late English papers as having occurred at St. Leonard's, Bilston. It appears that the householders of that town were recently called upon to elect a perpetual curate. Such an election had not been held for thirty-five years, when the death of Rev. Mr. FLETCHER rendered it necessary. There were two opposing candidates, Rev. Mr. WARD, who had been curate in charge during the last months of the life of the deceased incumbent, and Rev. C. LEE, the vicar of Holy Trinity, Haverstock Hill, London. The poll lasted two days, resulting in the election of the latter gentleman by a large majority; but the occasion was signalized by proceedings so strange and painful that it is not to be wondered at that they have been followed by an outburst of public reprobation.

That colors should have distinguished the opposing sides, voters have been brought up in placarded cabs, and that there should have been much marching, shouting and waving of banners, as is generally the case at Parliamentary elections in England, seems unbecoming enough for such an occasion, but perhaps was unavoidable. But, besides this, drunken women paraded the town, dressed in the colors of one side, while bands of Amazons in the interest of the other side swept through the streets and thrashed those whom they met wearing opposition colors. Pails of swill, bricks and stones were freely hurled at each other by the angry contestants. One of the reverend candidates was burned in effigy by the partisans of the other. Windows were broken and other mischief systematically perpetrated in all parts of the town; and finally—the leading London journal is our authority for the statement—only the active exertions of a heavy body of Police "prevented this election from leading to great rioting and injury to life and property."

What renders this outbreak more remarkable is the fact that there was no "treating" at the election. That some people were drunk is evident from the accounts of their actions, and this was notably true of a number of women; but the indiscriminate "free liquor" that sometimes flows at Parliamentary elections was wanting on this occasion, and the turbulent proceedings seem therefore to have been more surprising to the commentators of the Press. We do not wonder that these writers seemed to be so [illegible]

The New-York Yacht Club Regatta.

Our harbor has seldom seen a finer array of pleasure craft than that which assembled yesterday off Staten Island to witness and participate in the annual regatta of the New-York Yacht Club. As challenge and subscription cups were offered for both sloops and schooners, in addition to the usual Club prizes, more than ordinary interest was felt in this race, especially as several new yachts were entered for it. The official announcement of the course to be sailed distinctly stated that it was to be from the anchorage to the buoy on the South-west Spit, and thence to the light-ship and return, but most of the yachts were misled by a stake-boat which had been anchored to the west of the spit buoy—No. 10—so that by turning it, instead of the spit buoy, they failed to sail over the prescribed course, and therefore will probably have to be ruled out of the race. Where so many prizes depended upon the issue of a single race, it is particularly unfortunate that there should be any misunderstanding as to the course, but the judges must either award the cups to the yachts which turned the spit buoy, as directed, or else, which would perhaps be more satisfactory, they must order the races sailed over again. Although the yachts which turned the stake-boat, instead of the buoy, might very justly on that account be declared out of the race for the Club prizes, it is hardly desirable that a challenge cup should go to the third or fourth boat in, because its predecessors made a very natural mistake in turning a stake-boat which had been carelessly placed a little distance from, instead of at the buoy. These matters, however, must be decided by the judges.

It was very evident from the performances of the boats yesterday that our yachtsmen are in good condition to meet Mr. ASHBURY when he comes here in the Livonia next September, even if he insists upon sailing against a single vessel, instead of a fleet, when he next contends for the America's Cup. Not only are the old favorites in good condition, but some of the new ones are likely to give a good account of themselves. Commodore OSGOOD's new yacht, the Columbia, made an excellent second, and would doubtless have carried off all the prizes had she turned the spit-buoy coming home as she did going down. So, too, Mr. L. LORILLARD's Wanderer, built by ROBERT FISH, who made the Sappho what she is, was pronounced a model of naval architecture, while her performances showed she is not likely to be far from the front in all future races. The Tidal Wave made a good race throughout, while the Magic, Idler and Palmer lost none of their former laurels. The Sappho, Dauntless, and other large yachts, did not have wind enough to display their fine qualities, but they may be relied upon for heavy weather and tea-knot breezes. If, as has been proposed, the New-York Club is choosing a competitor for the Livonia, does not name it until the day of the race, there need be little fear that the Livonia will carry the challenge cup to England. It would be easy to select a centre-board yacht to beat if the weather were fine, and if it were heavy, the Sappho or Dauntless would probably be more than her match. There is no manner of doubt that as against the entire yacht squadron, Mr. ASHBURY would fare no better in the Livonia this year than he did in the Cambria last. Despite, therefore, its somewhat unsatisfactory result, yesterday's race was a gratifying proof that the interest in yachting is still keen and on the increase, and also that the recent additions to the yacht squadron are valuable acquisitions.

The Two Departures.

The World is troubled because "two platforms have been proposed for the Democratic Party in the contest of 1872." So far as an outsider can judge from the glimpses which the uninitiated are permitted to get, these two "departures" might be called the platform of frankness and the platform of fraud. The Democratic Party is evidently at a loss which to take. It stands at the point where the two roads meet, with a meditative finger on the lip, perplexed "which of the two to choose, slavery or death!"

The party of frankness, according to our anxious contemporary, is comprised of "JOHN FORSYTH, of the Mobile Register, and about six other politicians at the South calling themselves Democrats." It is unfortunate, doubtless, that among this half dozen are found JEFFERSON DAVIS, whom the whole South swear by and applaud, ALEXANDER H. STEPHENS, whom they regard, now that CALHOUN is gone, as their profoundest statesman, and ROBERT TOOMBS, who had the whole programme of the secession by heart and proclaimed it at Augusta, Ga., to a faithful few—even to the making of New-York a free City—a decade before the wayward sisters drew aside their skirts, and swept grandly "out of the Union." Now these men can break an oath, it is true, when the right occasion comes for that chivalrous act, but they are so desperate in regard to their own political future that they believe it is noble and manly now to speak up and declare the truth, and this truth is—what the whole Democratic Party holds, and until recently has declared—"We accept nothing." "The reconstruction amendments are unconstitutional and void; and when we get into power they shall be so declared, and be flung aside with the other broken pottery of the party we have driven from the White House." There is little doubt in honest men's minds that all the Democratic convictions and hopes are frankly expressed by these cheaply bold and outspoken champions of the "lost cause." But why do they about the secrets of the party over the [illegible] So thinks now the chagrined World. It is doing its duty in turning about on its own axis, and making its day's zenith its night's nadir; and rolling into the light a little for the present, and seeing the popularity and intrinsic excellence of Republican principles, it demands with all the fervor of recent conversion that its ass shall put on our lion's skin. It feels confident that the animal, with a little training, can imitate the genuine roar, and his majesty's gait, to perfection. It cries out against a premature resurrection of "dead issues," and affirms, with a vociferous earnestness which is a little suspicious, that "the old impressions and old notions (notions?) are at present quite irrelevant and misplaced." It lays all the blame of unfriendly frankness on the rigid conservatism of "old age," but blesses its stars that the canted TALLEYRAND "was young enough to comprehend the changed situation," and it clinches the matter by a confirmatory letter, written to that patriot only last May, by Chief-Justice CHASE!

We bestow our benediction on the Young Democracy, led off by the youthful TALLEYRAND and CHASE. And if one of the noble brothers has unfortunately fallen by the way, why should not the other, with all the fire and impulse of youth, giving wings to his ankles, run in the van of the new departure, and hurry it on to victory? Indeed, the old name having become musty, and having fastened to itself some undesirable associations during the late unpleasantness, why should not these progressives, who are determined to deal only with "live issues," drop the dead "Democratic" title, and call themselves the chase party? We offer them the idea as a free gift, and a very valuable one.

New Freshness in Burglary.

Western originality is constantly cropping out in the most unexpected ways. Strange oaths, extraordinary cooking, and an entirely new set of idioms do not begin to exhaust its novelties. Even in so stereotyped a matter as burglary, it furnishes, every now and then, the most refreshing innovations. For example, Louisville boasts of a burglar who is in the habit of entering houses, cutting off the hair of any female occupant, ransacking drawers and strewing their contents on the floor, breaking furniture, and finally departing empty-handed, as he came. Were we not expressly assured that this mysterious visitant is a burglar, we should be tempted to identify him with that supernatural personage who has by similar devices made life a burden to poor Mr. HOFFMANN's family in Ohio, and some of whose more delectable performances have been detailed in these columns.

Of the character of the gentlemen who lately favored Mr. NEGLEY, of Kansas City, Mo., with a similar midnight call, there can be no such doubt. They acted with a promptitude and a rational solicitude for their personal interests which is human in the extreme. Mr. NEGLEY resides a short distance out of town, and one night, not long ago, "was awakened by a suffocating sensation," to find a pistol at his head, and a man's hand upon his mouth, and to hear the forcible injunction "to keep still or die." Thus gently entreated, Mr. NEGLEY kept still, as did Mrs. NEGLEY, and the two Miss NEGLEYS, who were successively subjected to the same discipline. As the sex of three-fourths of the prisoners, however, rendered it problematical how long they could be depended on to keep still, even under peril of death, the invaders determined to make assurance doubly sure by locking them up in a mystic dungeon, known as the "root cellar," and described as "a stone vault built in the side of a bank a short distance from the house." Thither the unhappy captives were conveyed, and securely locked up, while the ungallant robbers resumed to despoil the house at their leisure. Having secured everything of value, they departed, leaving their luckless victims still in durance vile. It really seems, under the circumstances, to have been a piece of wanton cruelty, on the part of the victors, "to knock at the door of the root cellar or vault" just before leaving, "and bid the trembling inmates to keep still" again, "or they would shoot them like dogs." Unshot, but greatly subdued and dispirited, the prisoners were relieved from their root cellar, only at daylight, by a chance passer-by, attracted by their cries. The local papers express the hesitating hope that "some effective means will at once be adopted to rid the country of this gang." We dare say Mr. NEGLEY will echo the aspiration.

There is a novelty, it will be perceived, about this proceeding, which is quite captivating to the amateur in sensational crime, however distasteful it may be to its immediate subjects. Yet, not even these have much reason to complain. To be locked up in a root cellar, however ignominious, is certainly better than to be knocked on the head after the summary and still more unpleasant fashion of Metropolitan marauders. Perhaps these gentry will take a hint from their more imaginative and merciful Missouri colaborers, and if so, householders will do well to provide their residences with suitable root cellars at once, for the convenience of these minions of the moon.

MINOR TOPICS.

We publish elsewhere a series of resolutions passed by the General Associations of the Congregational Churches of Massachusetts and Connecticut, in which these bodies withdraw "their former recommendations of the American and Foreign Christian Union as an almoner of the contributions of the churches." For the present, a provisional Committee has been appointed to continue the work of evangelization in countries nominally Christian, heretofore intrusted to the agency of the Union. It is believed that this action will be the prelude to a general withdrawal of all the Congregational Churches in the country from their connection with the society in question. As this section of the religious world claims to have furnished half the funds administered by the American and Foreign Union, the prospects of the society will be materially impaired by any such action. The New-England Associations further recommend that no effort should be made at the solicitation of any such general agencies as the proposed Union for the collection and distribution of the contributions of the churches. Apart from the special merits of the present case, it is greatly to be regretted that a fresh argument should be furnished for the maintenance of separate denominational efforts for the broadest kind of Christian work. The base shine of charitable and religious enterprises is their want of general agreement and co-operation. An enormous waste of force and funds is the result of this, and it is greatly to be deplored that from a well-grounded lack of confidence in the efficiency of associations for interdenominational effect, the specs of a great federation of religious societies should be placed further off.

The announcement of an understanding having been formed between Germany, Russia and Austria, for the preservation of the peace of Europe, must, considering the authority on which it is made, be received with considerable reserve. It is conceivable that these three Powers might combine, as they have done before, against the hydra-headed foe of revolution which has substantial dangers for them all. But on the great territorial questions which menace the future tranquillity of Europe, their interests are so little identical that any expressed stipulation of common action would prove in the last degree meaningless and inoperative. There never was a time when the prospects of enduring peace in the Old World were so thoroughly uncertain, or when dynastic combinations were so impotent in making them more secure.

At yesterday's Commencement proceedings of the New-York University, Chancellor CROSBY announced several important changes of the nature of advances in its course of study. Among others, it may be noted that the Scientific Department has been made a co-ordinate faculty, the number of its Professors has been increased, and its tuition, in common with that of the Department of Arts, is to be thrown open free. It is to be hoped that the liberal policy so consistently favored by the present Chancellor, will elicit an adequate response from the community, for whose benefit the institution exists. The addresses of Mr. HOPLEY to the Alumni does full justice to the present and prospective mission of our local abode of the higher education. We trust that the day is not far distant when educated New-Yorkers will watch the progress of their University with unfailing interest, and second its efforts for making its tuition more thorough and comprehensive with all the zeal which they deserve.

The introduction of Tammany tactics into Connecticut by Gov. HOLCOMB and his friends appears to be demonstrating a good many of the members of the Legislature at their own. As a caucus of legislators belonging to the Democratic persuasion was held for the purpose of nominating candidates for certain offices in the Commonwealth, reporters and public being first carefully excluded, the singular circumstance transpired that for every office some member of the Legislature was a candidate, and these modest aspirants had face enough to sit still in the caucus and hear their merits and demerits discussed, as though it were a perfectly proper and creditable thing to do. One gentleman wished to be Railroad Commissioner, (and almost succeeded in getting himself nominated;) another desired the State Prison Inspectorship, and secured the nomination: and still another wanted a Judgeship, and sat out all the ballotings only to find his claim rejected. It makes no difference, in our view, what party these particular legislators affect; the occurrence is one discreditable to any honorable, high-minded man, and Connecticut would do well to pass a law preventing such candidatures being possible.

England is at last awakening to the conviction that a national debt is not, after all, a national blessing. Mr. LOWE made, the other day, a somewhat remarkable speech in defense of keeping up the system of terminable annuities—the method of debt reduction which owed its origin to Mr. GLADSTONE. The English Chancellor of the Exchequer makes a firm stand upon the principle that there is a point where reduction of taxation ought to cease and debt reduction to begin. Considering that the per capita rate of taxation in England has decreased from $13 in 1856, to $8 78 in 1870, it seems obvious that, if the present generation of Englishmen can do nothing toward diminishing the obligations of posterity, there must be a highly dangerous preponderance of selfishness of the community who literally live "from hand to mouth," and to whom existence has become so difficult that they are ripe for the most violent changes.

The Tribune, in praising Senator SMITH, of New-Hampshire, for voting with the Republicans against unlimited naturalization, did that excellent representative of the celebrated family unintentional injustice by identifying him with the Democracy. In point of fact, he was an independent Republican, chosen by the Democratic Senators, in preference to a regular rival, to fill a vacancy caused by the death of a Democrat. His sympathies and principles are all Republican, and it is a grievous offense to put him in the position of having to desert in order to be a Republican.

The American and Foreign Christian Union.

The dissatisfaction with the management of the American and Foreign Christian Union has resulted in the unanimous adoption by the General Associations of Massachusetts and of Connecticut of the following resolutions withdrawing from the support of that Society:

Resolved, That the General Association of the Congregational Churches of Massachusetts [Connecticut] withdraw its former recommendations of the American and Foreign Christian Union as an almoner of the contributions of the Churches.

Resolved, That for the further prosecution of the work of the Gospel in nominally Christian countries, a provisional committee of five be appointed by this Association to take measures, in connection with such other committees as may be appointed to act with them, in order to preserve the work from detriment, and prosecute it with increased energy until settled arrangements shall be made for the direction of the work; and that until that time the Churches be advised to intrust their contributions for that work to the charge of this Committee.

Resolved, That in the opinion of this Association, it is desirable that in the arrangements for the prosecution of this work no addition be made to the number of organizations for collecting and distributing the contributions of the Churches.

The Massachusetts Committee includes fund for the golden medals. A larger concourse of people is expected to be present at the exercises than Tuesday has yet contained. The examinations began on Saturday last, and will occupy one week.

CORNELL UNIVERSITY.

The Woodford Medal—Planting the Class Ivy—Interesting Proceedings and a Lecture.

From Our Special Correspondent.

ITHACA, Tuesday, June 20, 1871.

According to the programme which had been previously arranged, the competition for the Woodford medal, a prize valued at $100, took place last evening. Large numbers of candidates for admission to the University had been arriving during the day, and in the evening their presence tended to increase the size of the audience gathered to hear the competition. Of the six subjects given, but three were chosen by those who succeeded in entering the contest, viz: "Theories of History," "Alexander Hamilton," and "The Comparison Between the English and French Revolutions in the Seventeenth Century." All of the orations exhibited a very thorough study of the subject selected, and some were characterized by very superior ability. On the conclusion of the exercises, which were conferred by the services of the University Band, it was announced that the decision of the Committee would be made public on the ensuing evening.

Tuesday had been set aside as the day on which class exercises should be first celebrated at Cornell, and in the afternoon the latter began with a fine oration by Mr. BARNUM, entitled "The Brotherhood of Scholars," which was followed by a poem from the Class poet, and a very indefinable history of the class, read by Mr. R. O. KENNEDY, abounding in local hits and giving some statistics which were in the main more curious than valuable. He stated, among other things, that the average age of the class will nearly twenty-four years. After a parting address by Mr. BARNUM, the class adjourned to the campus, where the ceremony of planting the ivy was to be performed. Owing to the inclemency of the weather it was found necessary to have the ivy oration pronounced in the chapel, on the conclusion of which the calumet was passed around, and many of the dignified seniors who were unaccustomed to the use of tobacco succeeded in depriving themselves of comfort to almost as great an extent as their smoking accommodated the throng who had assembled to witness the proceedings. After a song, the execution of which was marked by more fleeting than correctness, the Class of '71 separated till evening, when their final supper was given.

At 8 o'clock the members of the scientific college assembled to listen to an address by ROSSITER W. RAYMOND, Ph. D., United States Commissioner of Mines. The subject was announced as "The Progress of Science and the Science of Progress." Previous to the introduction of the speaker, the President of the University made public the decision of the Committee on the Woodford medal. It was awarded to Mr. JOHN H. MORE, of Illinois, a classical student, and Mr. H. H. HARRIS, who graduates in the course in mechanics, was named as second. The lecturer began by familiarly illustrating the difficulties inherent in the task of discussing the progress of science, and kindly referred to the "lame notice" about which so much is heard. The wonderful preservation of ancient frescoes was shown to be due to the fact that during their burial they had not come exposed to the atmosphere, and that under the same conditions they are no more durable than others of more modern workmanship. Discovery simply, it was said, is not progress; but it is the aggregation of discoveries which enables us to form principle which distinguishes advancement. The characterization of this age was thought to be a disposition to put into practical use the inventions which have already been made. The speaker considered that the medals should receive an education in the same way as the lawyer and physician, and jocularly referred to the fact that times have changed since the old German proverb of the distribution of wealth and honor in the learned professions was true. In the University the faculties formerly consisted of four departments—medicine, law, theology and philosophy, the latter of which included the sciences, language, history, &c. In medicine it was said one gained brass and theology in law, bread without honor; in the other, honor without bread, and in philosophy neither one nor the other. The need for scientific training was shown in the fact that sixty per cent of the amount of coal mined in Pennsylvania is lost during the manufacture and transmission in reaching the markets in New-York. The gold which is collected from the mines of Colorado undergoes a similar diminution. Referring to the influence which institutions of learning and their graduates exert upon the people generally, he stated that the principal cause of the deficiences of the latter was the attempt to crowd a whole education into four years' course; whereas our expansionary training should be broader and more thorough or else post-graduate courses should be provided to bring our training up to the European standard.

HARVARD'S GREAT DAYS.

Preparations for Class Day—The Programme in Full—The Commencement Wares.

From Our Own Correspondent.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Thursday, June 22, 1871.

Class Day at Harvard to-morrow; the Seniors' great day; the day of solemn ceremonies and boisterous performances, of gorgeous "spreads" and unbounded jollity, of dangerous flirtations and sad farewells, of soft music and dancing on the green sward; the day of all days when the Senior is a man of mark, when the old University is as completely as possible given up to his charge, when his guests include bewildering crowds of the prettiest and loveliest girls that ever dazzled and bewitched a fellow, and the generous old College grounds are rendered most picturesque and beautiful. To-morrow will be this cherished day, and consequently now there is activity all about the ancient buildings, and preparations are everywhere making on an extensive scale.

CLASS-DAY PROGRAMME.

The usual familiar programme will be followed. Soon after 9 o'clock in the forenoon the Seniors, "in dress suits, hats, white cravats, and white gloves," march in solemn procession to the chapel where Scripture selections will be read and prayer made by the Class Chaplain, CHARLES L. B. WHITNEY; thence they will proceed to breakfast with the members of the Faculty, after which they will march to the Old First Church, with the President and high officials of the College as "honored guests," where the oration will be delivered, the poem read, and the ode sung. The order of exercises in the church will be as follows:

MUSIC.

Prayer—By Rev. A. P. PEABODY.

MUSIC.

Oration—By HORACE EDWARD DEMING, of Sharon, Ct.

MUSIC.

Poem—By HENRY WALTON SWIFT, of New-Bedford.

Ode—By WILLIAM TUDOR, of Boston.

The following is the ode, it will be sung to the old tune of Tom Moore's "Believe me, if all those endearing young charms," but which is known here by the new title of "Fair Harvard:"

Farewell to the days that make memory bright,
To glow with the charm of the past,
How sweet is the thought of the love that has been,
How sad that this day is the last.
The last of our life in Harvard's old halls,
The last of our freedom and youth
May we part from her strong in her lessons of love,
And wise from her teachings of truth.

As brothers we stand on the threshold of life,
With hope beating high in each breast,
We now firmly clasp the hand to unite back with heart,
As hand is in hand firmly pressed.
Though the ocean divide with its limitless wastes,
And, scattered, we meet here no more,
Let us honor the name of Fair Harvard, like those Whoshave lived here and gone on before.

Farewell, then, bright hours so pleasantly passed,
If memory be sorrow or care,
To leave, full of hope that the future may bring
Some moments as free or as fair.
One more clasp of the hand as we whisper farewell;
One more look at each face, ere we part;
Though the freshness is gone from the life we have lived,
May its friendships cling fast to each heart.

These and the formalities and begin the festivities. From 2 to 3 there will be music on the green, dancing in Massachusetts Hall and promenading with the "dear girls" in and out of the trees and all over the grounds. At 5½ the class will reassemble in front of Holworthy Hall, clad in rougher costume than before, though, per order of the Class Committee, "all absurdity or dress must be avoided;" march briskly through the yard, cheer the buildings, plant the Class Ivy, repair to the Old Elm behind Mollis and Harvard, there cheer everybody, especially "the ladies," sing the class song, whirl around the venerable tree with the other classes, climb and scramble for the chaplet of flowers which will encircle the trunk, and finally boisterously embrace and part as a class. In the evening the College grounds will be illuminated, the Glee Club will sing, the band will play, there will be much dancing, and meanwhile President ELIOT will receive those members of the class and their friends who may call upon him. The class and Class Day officers this year are as follows:

Orator—Horace Edward Deming.
Poet—Henry Walton Swift.
Odist—William Tudor.
Ivy Orator—Jean Reynolds.
Chaplain—Charles Lawrie Beals Whitney.
Marshals—James Selden McCobb, Archibald McClure Bush, Walter Clifford.
Class Day Committee—Charles Herbert Williams, Harry Godey, Osgood Sedgwick.
Class Committee—Dudley Hall Bradlee, Harvey Newton Shepard, Hamilton McKown Twombly.
Class Secretary—Albert Mallard Barnes.

The class is very large, and has, on the whole, a fair record.

COMMENCEMENT.

Next Wednesday will be Commencement Day. The parts to be delivered in the Old Church have been assigned as follows:

C. J. BONAPARTE—Latin Salutatory.
J. FOX—"Plurality of Worlds."
E. P. NICHOLS—"The Religion of Positivism."
C. M. OSBORN—"The Philosophy of Musical Structure."
E. W. KIDD—"Our Indian Troubles."
G. P. STUHLI—"Franklin as a Philosopher and Man."

The programme presents unusual variety, and, being short, commends itself to those who may have been wearied by the Commencement exercises of old times. The new style of pronouncing Latin will be presented to the public for the first time in the Salutatory. The Governor will ride out to Cambridge from Boston in state, as customary, escorted by the Mounted Lancers, and all the exercises of the day will be like those of past Commencements.

MUNROE.

NEW-YORK UNIVERSITY.

Commencement Exercises—Prizes Awarded—Degrees Conferred—The University a Free College Henceforth—Alumni Reunion.

The annual Commencement exercises of the University of the City of New-York were held yesterday morning at Booth's Theatre, which was filled with an audience consisting, for the most part, of elegantly-dressed ladies. The Chancellor of the University, Rev. Dr. HOWARD CROSBY, presided, and on the stage were the members of the Faculty, and Rev. Drs. HUTTON, ROGERS, ISAACS and AIKMAN; also, President BARNARD, of Columbia College, President WEBB, of the College of the City of New-York, and other distinguished gentlemen.

After prayer by Rev. Dr. FERRIS, the following programme was carried out:

Latin Salutatory Addresses, with Oration, "Individualism"—ABRAHAM S. ISAACS, New-York City.
English Salutatory Oration—THEO. F. RUBERMAN, New-York City.
Oration—Charles Lawrie Beals Whitney.
Chancellor—William Lawrence Symons.
Marshals—James Selden McCobb, Archibald McClure Bush, Walter Clifford.
Class Day Committee—Charles Herbert Williams, Harry Godey, Osgood Sedgwick.

The Waste Scandal—The Trial Adjourned to the October Term.

At the opening of the Supreme Court, Circuit, Part II., before Judge VAN BRUNT, yesterday, the case of EGBERT L. VIELE vs. TERESA VIELE, for divorce, was called on for trial. Counsel for Mrs. VIELE urged a postponement, until October. They were disposed, however, they said, to yield to the suggestion to have the case referred, if they could only have assurance that no stay would be entered against the operation of Judge BARNARD'S order giving Mrs. VIELE the custody of the two younger children. After considerable discussion on the subject of selecting a referee, it was finally assented that Judge VAN BRUNT appoint the referee, but defendant's counsel wished before concluding their assent, to learn what would be done in relation to Judge BARNARD'S order. Judge VAN BRUNT then adjourned the hearing until 12 o'clock, to afford defendant an opportunity to consult Judge BARNARD on the subject, at the same time stating that if Judge BARNARD should refuse a stay, then the trial must forthwith proceed. On presenting themselves before Judge BARNARD, that Judge said that in view of previous proceedings in the case, he could not grant a stay of his order if the cause was referred, but if the trial went on before Judge VAN BRUNT, he would, when informed of that fact, grant the required stay. At 12 o'clock the parties again appeared before Judge VAN BRUNT, and an application was made on behalf of defendant for a postponement of the case until October, she stipulating, in the meantime, to allow the plaintiff to retain possession of the two younger children, and in no way to interfere with such custody. Based on this statement Judge VAN BRUNT ordered the case to stand over until the October Term.

Fatal Result of an Affray.

The affray which occurred in front of No. 23 Mulberry-street on the night of the 4th inst., ended yesterday in the death of CARMINEO LOZARA, an Italian thirty years of age, who lived at No. 67 Baxter-street, who was then struck on the head with a brick supposed to have been thrown by ANTON ARANTI. After LOZARA fell insensible to the street, all the others fled, and the assailant has not yet been found, although diligent search has been made for him. The wounded man was taken to the Park Hospital, where his wound, which was found to be a compound fracture of the skull, was dressed, and he was then taken home by his friends. Coroner YOUNG was notified after death, yesterday, and a post-mortem examination made, after which the inquest was adjourned. The assailant is said to belong to a gang of lawless fellows, to which deceased also belonged, and hopes are entertained that he will be arrested.

The Shady Side of the Viaduct Railroad.

The proceedings of the directors of the Viaduct Railroad Company are kept secret. It is known, however, that they have in their employ a corps of 150 engineers and surveyors who are busily at work surveying the route of the proposed line. The Executive Committee have as yet made no report in regard to the most practicable route for the road, and, until they do so, nothing further can be done by the directors. A map and profile of the route will have to be submitted to the Governor, the Mayor and the Commissioners of Public Works for their approval, and when this is obtained it is probable that the work will be commenced. At the last meeting of the directors Mayor HALL announced that no further meetings be held until the Executive Committee had made their report, which it is not likely that they can do for some time to come.

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

The sales effected at the Exchange yesterday (June 22) were confined to two legal transactions, respectively conducted by MULLER, WILKINS & CO. and JOSEPH MCGUIRE. The first of these by order of the Court of Common Pleas, in foreclosure, under the direction of THOMAS H. LENDON, Esq., referee, embraced the sale of a house and lot, the latter 25 by 109.5, on the south side of Seventieth-street, between Third and Fourth avenues, sold to DAVID SCOTT for $6,300. At the second sale, by order of the Supreme Court, in foreclosure, under the direction of D. P. INGRAHAM, Jr., Esq., referee, a three-story brick house and lot on the west side of First-avenue, between Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth streets, lot 16.6 by 100, was sold to E. W. CONKLIN for $7,600. The legal sale of property on Fifty-first-street, between Seventh and Eight avenues, was postponed by Mr. MCGUIRE indefinitely. No further business was transacted. In regard to the sale of lots at Jamaica, Long Island, by JAMES A. FLEURY, the result of the transaction will be stated to-morrow.

The sale of property at Oakland, N. J., conducted by A. D. MELLICK, Jr., & BRO., was continued on Wednesday, and again attended with unqualified success. The number of buyers and others present was not so large as on the day previous, but bidding was active, and the prices realized for lots disposed of entirely satisfactory. In all 221 lots were sold, making 257 disposed of in the two days' sales, a very gratifying circumstance of the enterprise. A detailed report is appended, in which each lot noted is in size 25 by 105. At the conclusion of Wednesday's auction it was announced that as the owners of the land had sold already a greater portion of the property than those at first intended, no more lots would be at present offered.

Today, at the Exchange, but little if any business will be transacted, no auctions being announced. In suburban sales, A. D. MELLICK, Jr., & BRO., O. H. PIERSON, auctioneer, will hold one of Oakland, Passaic, N. J., at which 165 lots, all handsomely located, will be offered at sale at 1 P. M., on the ground. Special train from Barclay and Christopher-street Ferries, at 11 A. M. Free tickets, maps of property, and all particulars, to be obtained of auctioneers, No. 6 Pine-street.

At private sale, V. K. STEVENSON & SON, No. 11 Pine-street, report having recently disposed of the four-story high-stoop brown-stone house and lot, No. 108 East Thirty-ninth-street, for $22,500; lot 16.8 by ½ the block.

WM. KENNELLY, No. 4 Pine-street, has recently been appointed Sheriff's real estate auctioneer, vice COL. WM. F. ROGERS, resigned. The appointment is a good one, for Mr. KENNELLY having previously held the office under Sheriffs LYNCH and KELLY, fully understands the business, and in the discharge of the duties will undoubtedly give general satisfaction.

REAL ESTATE AT AUCTION.

IMPORTANT SALE

OF

THE ISLAND OF SOMBRERO,

AND

MINES OF PHOSPHATE OF LIME, &c.,

THEREON.

MR. HENRY CHATTERIS,

the official liquidator of the Sombrero Phosphate Company, Limited, will, (with the approbation of the Vice-Chancellor, Sir Richard Malins,) offer for sale by public vendue at his chambers, No. 1 Gresham Buildings, Basinghall-street, in the City of London, on

MONDAY, THE 17TH DAY OF JULY NEXT,

at 12 o'clock at noon precisely,

The Leasehold Interest of the Sombrero Phosphate Company, Limited, in the Island of Sombrero in the West Indies, and the Mines of Phosphate of Lime, &c., and the buildings, machinery, plant, lighters, implements and chattels of the Company on the said Island, together with the consumable stores and stock of Phosphate on the Island, and the benefit of certain contracts entered into for the supply of phosphate.

The whole is now yielding a large profit, and the Phosphate of lime, and the large profits made by the liquidator by the sale of phosphate, the produce of the Island during the past twelve months, induces him to call the attention of capitalists to the opportunity now offered for a sound and highly lucrative investment.

Detailed particulars and conditions of sale and forms of tender may be had of the official liquidator, No. 1 Gresham Buildings, Basinghall-street, in the City of London; of Messrs. DAVIDSON, CARR, BANNISTER & MARTEN, No. 70 Basinghall-st., London, solicitors; Messrs. MATHEWS & MATHEWS, No. 39 Bedford-row, London, solicitors; Messrs. KIMBER & ELLIS, No. 70 Lombard-st., London, solicitors; and Messrs. CHESTON & SONS, No. 1 Great Winchester-st., Buildings, London, solicitors.

By authority of the Board of Directors of THE NEW-YORK RAILWAY COMPANY, and in conformity with the terms of the act of incorporation in that respect, the undersigned, Commissioners on Stock Subscriptions, give public notice for and on behalf of the directors of such Company, that books of subscription for the capital stock thereof will be opened on WEDNESDAY, the 28th day of June, inst., as the following places in the City, viz.:
At the banking-house of DUNCAN, SHERMAN & CO., No. 11 Nassau-st.
At the banking-house of the BANK OF THE METROPOLIS, No. 81 Union-square.
The Company is authorized to construct two viaduct railways or branches, through the City of New-York, on the east and west sides thereof, from a common starting-point at or near Chambers-st., between Broadway and Chatham-st.; also across the Harlem River and through Westchester County; with power to build additional lines of railway or branches, from time to time, in any part of the City or Westchester County. The property acquired by the Company is exempted from taxes and assessments during the period allowed for the final completion of the railway in the City. The Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of New-York are authorized and directed, with the approval of the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund, to subscribe for five millions of dollars of the stock of the Company, whenever one million of dollars thereof has been subscribed for by private parties. This conditional amount of stock has been wholly subscribed for and taken by the directors of the Company. On the completion of either of the lines of railway to the line of Westchester County, the Supervisors of that county are authorized to issue their bonds of the county to such amount as the Supervisors shall deem expedient, to aid in the construction and extension of the railway in and through that county. For the proper equalization of the interest of shareholders who may subscribe and pay in moneys at different times, the directors are authorized to issue scrip for interest on such payments, payable out of the earnings.

The terms of subscription will be as follows:
TEN per cent of the amount of stock subscribed for to be paid in cash at the time of subscription. The residue to be paid as called for by the Board of Directors on a notice of thirty days, but no call at any one time to exceed ten per cent.
Scrip for interest at the rate of seven per cent. per annum will be issued by the Company, payable out of the first earnings of the railway on all installments paid on stock subscribed for within thirty days after the subscription-books shall be opened.
The Company reserves the right to close the subscription-books at any time after the 28th day of July, 1871.
By order of the Board of Directors,

Business in the Pension Office—The Ku-Klux Committee—The Government of South Carolina Shown Up—Prominent Ex-Rebels to be Examined—Military Operations Against the Outlaws—Civil Service.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—The Executive Committee of the New-York Central Railroad have written here denying the reports that they received any information in advance of Commissioner PLEASONTON's decision in the scrip-tax case, through Mr. THOMPSON or anybody else. They say the decision was not offered to them, and there was no speculation. It is pretty certain that there has been a fire somewhere which destroyed the great snake, and that the facts are in possession of the President and his confidential advisers. It is due to the Railroad Company, perhaps, to say that the facts now in possession of the Government do not prove that any of the Company's officers were engaged in corrupt dealings. Neither is the opposite, however, proved. It is probable that a few days will pass before further developments will be made public.

THE PENSION OFFICE.

A statement of the condition of the business of the Pension Office on the 1st of the present month, furnishes some interesting facts. There are pending in the office 26,524 claims for pensions, of which number 23,114 are army invalids, 26,093 soldiers' widows and dependent heirs, 768 navy invalids, 640 sailors' widows and dependent heirs, 4,621 colored claimants, and 26,955 claims of the war of 1812. The army and navy rejected claims number 29,617. The number of invalid claims not reached for action or in which evidence has been received but not applied, is 2,736; widows' claims in the same condition, 3,021; navy claims, 143; colored claimants, 1,983; total not reached, 7,883. The number of pensioners on the rolls June 30, 1870, was 207,186; increase, 6,866. The amount for pensions paid for the twelve months preceding June 30, 1870, was $27,339,220 90; for the twelve months succeeding June 30, 1870, $28,123,-349 07. It will be noticed that the work of the office is greatly in arrears, but the new Commissioner is reorganizing his force with a view to bringing it up as fast as possible.

THE KUKLUX.

It is now regarded as certain that evidence concerning the Kuklux will be sought in the South after the hot weather is over. The testimony already taken seems to have determined that the original plan of roving subcommittees shall be carried out. Mr. ADAMS, formerly of Massachusetts, and now of Mississippi, testified to-day to the good order prevailing in that State. Mr. SHERRILL, of South Carolina, was before the Committee, and showed up the Government of that State, which he made out to be very bad. Judge ERAVIS, of Alabama, and Mr. SUBER, of South Carolina, will be examined to-morrow. Judge BOZEMAN is also here to appear before the Committee. Gen. FORREST arrived here last night, and Gen. MOSBY today, and they will take their turns in being examined. It is probable that a plan of using the military more effectively to prevent outrages will be arranged at some time not very distant, though the details may not be made public till the plan is carried into execution.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

GEO. WM. CURTIS has accepted his appointment on the Civil Service Commission.

GERMAN MAILS.

The following notice has been issued from the Post-office Department:

"An additional article to the postal convention between the United States and the Empire of Germany establishes a reduced postage charge of six cents per single rate on letters to or from Germany, Austria and Luxembourg by Bremen and Hamburg. The Baltic Lloyd Company's steam-ships, which touch at Christiansand and Copenhagen, will also convey a direct mail to and from the Kingdoms of Sweden and Norway and Denmark, comprising the rates accordingly which the senders may wish to have forwarded by this line, and on which the United States postage shall have been fully prepaid, at the following rates, viz.: On letters, ten cents per each half ounce or under; on newspapers, two cents the single, and on packages of printed matter, other than newspapers, not exceeding four ounce; two cents; not exceeding two ounces, three cents; four ounces, four cents, and four cents for every additional four ounces or fraction of four ounces. The above postage charges are in like manner to be levied and collected at the offices of delivery on the correspondence received in the United States from the countries in question by this line of steam-ships.

THE ARCTIC EXPEDITION.

The Polaris to Sail Tuesday Next—Her Sailing-Master's Opinion of Her—Dissatisfaction and Desertion Among the Crew.

Capt. HALL announces that the work upon the Polaris, which is now rapidly approaching completion, will have been finished by Monday next, and on Tuesday she will be escorted down the bay by a Government steamer, on board of which will be a number of the members of the American Geographical Society, with their ladies to give the Arctic explorers their last farewell. Yesterday the TIMES reporter visited the Polaris at her dock at the Brooklyn Navy-yard, and found all busily employed in their preparations for the long-delayed departure. Capt. BUDDINGTON, who goes out as sailing-master, and who has had an experience of over thirty years in the most difficult navigation known—that among large fields of ice, where compass, quadrant and chronometer are utterly useless, and where the only reliance is good judgment and strong nerve, speaks very disparagingly of the Polaris. He informed the reporter yesterday, that the vessel had but one redeeming quality, and that was her great strength. Capt. BUDDINGTON also said that it was a fatal mistake, and one that had unfortunately been made in selecting a vessel for such expeditions, that they were entirely too small. In the case of the Polaris it is probable that many articles, valuable to the voyagers, will have to be returned to the NAVY Department, for this simple reason, which is now beyond remedy. The men of the Polaris appear, as a general thing, to be not very well satisfied, and do not seem to be inspired with that fever for adventure which manifested itself among them when they first enlisted in the enterprise. Wednesday evening this feeling of dissatisfaction became very apparent in the desertion of one of the men, a German, who had been considered very reliable and one of the best seamen aboard of the ship. He was given a pass to go to New-York, and CHESTER, the sailing-master's assistant, thinking it a favorable opportunity to send his clothes to the laundry, engaged the sailor to carry the bundle. With his own kit under one arm, those of Mr. CHESTER under the other, and a goodly sum of advanced money in his pocket, the inducement to desert was too strong for poor Jack to resist. He fled, and has not since been heard from.

Capt. HALL has finally succeeded in securing the services of an efficient astronomer, in the person of Mr. R. W. D. BYRAN, a graduate of Lafayette College, Easton, Penn. Mr. BYRAN, who is but twenty-four years of age, has been for some time under the careful tuition of Prof. HILGARD, of the National Academy of Science, and is said to have made wonderful progress in his studies on astronomy. Prof. HILGARD speaks of him in the highest terms, and pronounces him as being fully capable to undertake the charge of the astronomical observations during the voyage. Monday evening the American Geographical Society will tender Capt. HALL and his officers a public reception, at their rooms at the Cooper Institute. The Arctic explorer, it is expected, will give a detailed statement in regard to his route and the prospects of its success.

Coal in the Bay—Pleasure Marred by a Dread of Pestilence.

On the beach at Staten Island, between Vanderbilt's Landing and Fort Wadsworth, were thousands of people yesterday, drawn thither by a desire of seeing the start of the yachts in the regatta. The breeze and weather were so inviting that ladies and children hastened to the shore and the embankments overhanging it to seat themselves and be refreshed. Once there, a most offensive odor assailed their nostrils, causing the delicate ones to Many persons who are owners of Staten-Island property had been employed during the three fragments with large boat-hooks and casting them far out on the Bay. DR. LANAHAN'S TRIAL.

Evidence of Friends Finally Ruled Out—Dr. Carlton Asks the Committee to Examine the Bank-Books and Check-Books—Mr. Buckley and Mr. Fancher Sum Up.

The Book Committee and the Bishops met, yesterday, at the Methodist Book Rooms, at the usual hour, 10 A. M., Bishop SCOTT making his appearance among them for the first time. A motion to further suspend the rules, and take up the resolution before the Committee, at the time of adjournment, was lost by a vote of 9 to 4, which put a final quietus on the attempt to get evidence of the friends into the present trial. The rules were suspended, to admit the reading of the following:

To the Book Committee:

DEAR BRETHREN: Understanding that certain persons are seeking to create the impression on the public mind that I am or have been unwilling to have the check-books, book-books and certain other vouchers of the Book Concern examined, I deem it best to solicit, as I hereby do, that you appoint some person or persons to examine such books and papers as pertain to the matter now under investigation. I by no means wish that the examination shall be as full and early as possible. All such books and papers shall be immediately placed in hands for that purpose.

THOS. CARLTON, Agent.

NEW-YORK, June 22, 1871.

After the letter was read Mr. FANCHER said: During the trial we have objected to certain testimony offered by the counsel of Dr. LANAHAN. That objection we now withdraw, and we ask him to produce any evidence which bears on the relations between Dr. CARLTON and himself.

Judge REYNOLDS replied: We were restricted in our course of defense. We propose to illustrate Dr. LANAHAN's motives by showing what friends he discovered, and how his opinions were afterward confirmed by further discoveries. We have been ruled out with that. We depend upon the assurance of the Committee that they will provide the time and place for a further pertinent line of this evidence; but it is impossible for us now to recast our defense in this case unless the Committee will give us time to recall our witnesses and get together our evidence.

REBUTTING TESTIMONY.

The Chairman ruled the question out, and Mr. BUCKLEY was called to give some rebuttive testimony in regard to the proceedings in the latter part of the ten weeks' examination of the books. He mainly corroborated Dr. LANAHAN's statements.

Dr. LANAHAN was then called by Judge REYNOLDS to correct any statements Dr. CARLTON might have made concerning him.

Dr. LANAHAN—I never said to Dr. CARLTON, as is alleged, that "I did not care for the Book Committee, nor did I make such a remark to any one else. I said the Book Committee had no right to send to deprive me of access to the books, and if they did, they had no authority to do it. I said it within certain limitations we were authorized to do certain things, and so far were acting under the authority of the General Conference. I took, on one occasion, my venture to a paper-dealer in connection with an entire cord of old books. I did it on the ground that an act of the Book Committee, passed in 1860, ordains that the vouchers for the payment of moneys shall be kept in possession of the Agents, and not of heads of departments. I, on another occasion, took some of the vouchers I received from Mr. GOODENOUGH to my house, and returned them afterward to the office.

Judge REYNOLDS—Did Dr. CARLTON tell you at any time that you might have access to the books for information for the Goodenough suit? A.—He did not; he refused to permit a general examination, and said when the suit came on I could take any book into Court.

Mr. HENRY SCRIVNER, assistant cashier of the Book Concern, testified that he overheard Dr. LANAHAN, in presence of Dr. CARLTON and Mr. FANCHER, state that he was not responsible to the Book Committee, but to the General Conference.

This closed the testimony in the case.

It was arranged that counsel should alternate in summing up the case; Mr. BUCKLEY leading off, would be followed by Mr. FANCHER, then Judge REYNOLDS would take his turn, and Gen. BURTON have the last word. This having been settled, the Council adjourned for lunch.

AFTERNOON SESSION—SUMMING UP.

The Court having reassembled, Mr. BUCKLEY proceeded to sum up for the defense. He said: I regret that the great question at issue here has not been and cannot be touched in this case. We supposed that we should be allowed to show the state of facts one of which grew the necessity which drove JOHN LANAHAN to apply to the civil Courts. We supposed that though the Court could not decide on the main question of the frauds, the evidence concerning those frauds would have been so completely brought out as to let in upon them the light so much desired by the Church and the public. Now the question is: Is there reason shown why Dr. LANAHAN should be dismissed? In spite of forty years of faithful service to the Church, Dr. LANAHAN has been set forth as a man malicious and designing, not in his trust, but when he was suspended and tried before this Committee on twenty-seven specifications against his character, he was reinstated. He proceeded with his work from that time till a certain day when the community was startled by the statement that Dr. LANAHAN had applied to the Supreme Court for a mandamus to compel THOMAS CARLTON to give him access to the books. The Book Committee suspended him once more, and on the 15th of June the present trial began. We concede that the mandamus was applied for and we believe that we have shown in his justification:

1. That for the purpose for which he wanted the books access to them was denied him.

2. That he did not apply to the Courts till every other means of getting the books was exhausted.

3. That he was in extreme need of those books.

First.—We deny that Dr. LANAHAN ever had the access to the books which he wished at the time of the trial. Dr. LANAHAN's all was at stake. Substantially you have twice declared against him. High officers of the Church declared he was a Jesuit, insane or the devil. Another declared that JOHN LANAHAN kept a keg of rum in his house, where he and the ecclesiastics met to drink. If Dr. LANAHAN was convicted he would have retired to private life a broken man.

Dr. LANAHAN was required by the Committee's resolution to examine the books in his former trial, under the supervision of GRANT. Now, in the Goodenough case, if Dr. LANAHAN could establish his defense, Dr. CARLTON, ELIHU GRANT and others would be greatly damaged. Dr. LANAHAN wanted to prove, for one thing, that the books had been wretchedly kept. Was the book-keeper the man to supervise this examination, which would displace him if successful? Was Dr. CARLTON the man to supervise all this, he whose all depends on his proving JOHN LANAHAN untrustworthy? It seems to these books was a farce under the supervision of men so involved. Thus LANAHAN tried to get the proper authorities to give him what he needed, and what he had a right to have, and they refused. His only remaining chance was with the Courts, that Dr. LANAHAN examined the books in the last ten weeks, and the reason he did not ask these munions of his foes for information was because if the books were right they would show it, and because the indications of a set purpose to cast off his head festered him. We asked at length for the bank-books and check-books, and we did not get them. We were told we had had them long enough, and that Dr. CARLTON thought the examination was over. On the contrary, he never pretended that he thought we were done. He said we couldn't have the books. He told Judge REYNOLDS that he'd been advised not to let us have them, that we'd been long enough about the examination, and he undertakes to say in his affidavit that he (CARLTON) had a right to keep these books from LANAHAN by reason of his authority as senior agent and the instructions of the Book Committee. A great variety of reasons sure enough. JOHN LANAHAN stood on his own bottom in all these cases with little help. He has used now great part of his pittance, saved during thirty years as a Methodist preacher, in fighting, as he believes, for the good of this Concern.

Mr. BUCKLEY then traced the history of the Concern, showing how the assistant agent had gradually grown from a mere clerk to a copartner in the Concern. Dr. CARLTON acknowledged this equality according to his own evidence, when he offered to Dr. LANAHAN, on his advent to the Concern, his choice as to the share of the agent's work which he would assume. Mr. BUCKLEY cited the case of the loan to the Southern Church made by the Book Concern, for which both book agents were held equally responsible by public opinion, to show that the junior agent has equal rights and responsibilities in the House. In which case Dr. LANAHAN had the unquestionable right to the books, without ELIHU GRANT's or any one else's supervision. With reference to the powers of the Committee, Mr. BUCKLEY held that the Committee had not the right to punish Dr. LANAHAN or any one else, their only duty is to make such appointments or removals as would benefit the Book Concern. The Concern has not suffered; its business has increased, and has been increasing, and in view of these facts it could not be right to expel this man from this Concern for merely going to the Courts for a mandamus to get books upon which his all depended, and which he could not get in any other way. The addition of the Bishops made this to all intents and purposes a Court. We wished, said Mr. BUCKLEY in conclusion, to submit certain evidence to the Bishops and could have no fear. I therefore remind you that you and the Bishops are shut up to the consideration of the case on whether JOHN LANAHAN was justifiable in resorting to that Court, and nothing else. I know the popular clamor that may come to bear on your decision in this case. But we find it to think that the noble men who have been added to this body by the General Conference with a veto power, will not be deterred by any fear of popular opinion from doing the thing which is exactly right.

MR. FANCHER SUMS UP.

Though the time for adjournment was now passed, the session was extended to admit Mr. FANCHER's plea, and he proceeded:

You know very well, gentlemen, whence the agitation has come which for two years past has made this Concern a by-word in the secular press and shaken the confidence of the whole Church in it. It has all come from Dr. LANAHAN, the instant agent. He and his have made charges, exist in the Methodist Book Concern, and he continues to say at every available opportunity. The competent authorities of the Church heard his specifications, and decided against them. This decision I hold he should have stood by, or else appealed to the General Conference. But no; he continues on every available occasion to repeat his charges, though they have been pronounced false by the proper authority. He has accountants ten weeks preparing to show before you that his statements had been true—not preparing for the Goodenough suit. He prints the result of his examination, and then comes editions afresh off. Do you believe that those statements were made and printed for use in the Goodenough case? The summer of the scribe has been to confirm and keep up this blackmailing report against the Methodist Book Concern; and if you consent to this man's doing so his life bear out the appearances in this case. We wanted to stop the cry of fraud, to settle the troubles and quiet the whole agitation. By the action of last January the matter was laid over to the next General Conference, and for a while peace reigned in the Book Concern, when suddenly we find this man rushing into Court to get this mandamus. He knew it would open the old sore and arouse the cry of fraud in the Methodist Book Concern with redoubled force. He knew the Press would take up the cry of this new trouble in the Methodist Church. JOHN LANAHAN is a man of large personality and purpose. What he undertakes he is carrying through. He started out on this crusade against the Methodist Book Concern, and he has never swerved from his intention to prove these frauds which he had predicated. His rushing into Court is only an incident in his course, and it is the very last thing a Methodist, a minister of the Church and an Agent of the Book Concern ought to have done.

The Goodenough suit is alleged as an excuse. There was no necessity to go to the Supreme Court. The Superior Court could have issued a supreme duces tecum, and served Dr. CARLTON to bring these books and papers into Court. If the Goodenough trial had been the object of the proceeding, the mandamus would have been unnecessary. The affidavit does not mention the Goodenough case. Dr. LANAHAN tells us what he means. "I," Dr. CARLTON and Dr. CRAN and Mr. DENHAM don't harmonize with me in this idea of blackballing the Book Concern, and I don't want to be indebted to them," he says in effect. This Concern will come out clear if they are allowed to come in. The examination must be made in secret, so that the charges may be fastened on this Concern. He produces the affidavits of a cashier of the Second and Leather Bank, of a man named VANDENBURG, of his accountant and himself, and gets all the most scandalous charges ever brought against a business house. He charges the Treasurer of the Methodist Board of Missions with embezzling the funds intrusted to his charge, and a crime which would send him to the State Prison. He claims to be a corporator of the Methodist Book Concern. I say he's not. The act prescribes that only the General Conference of the Methodist Church can use or dress to be used any portion of the property belonging to the Concern. He says the Court of Chancery gave the authority of that act. The terms explaining the corporate right, he says, are so clear that he does not see how they can be misunderstood. What but the pertinacious character of the man could have brought him here, with his legislative act, to induce an assembly like this to close its eyes to all the history of the Church with its references to the relations of the Agents and Assistant Agents? What could be more explicit on this point of the relative authority of the Agents than the following resolution, passed by the Book Committee in February, 1863: "Resolved, That it is the unanimous opinion of the Book Committee that the Book Agents are not co-equals in authority, but that the Agent is the man upon whom the chief responsibility devolves, and that the Assistant Agent is officially, in all respects, subordinate to him." Even as far back as 1816 similar action was taken by the Committee. Bishop HEDDING's rule of the Discipline is of itself explicit enough: "There shall be an Agent and two Assistant Agents." If they had been co-equal the Conference would have said: "There shall be three Agents." The excuses of the Assistant Agent that he wanted the books for the Goodenough case will not justify these proceedings. I have shown that the Superior Court could have brought in these books. Now here is the most singular thing: Mr. GOODENOUGH sued Dr. LANAHAN for slander. Now I never heard of a man's being exculpated for uttering slander on evidence found in books long after the allegations have been made. Nothing in these books which Dr. LANAHAN had not ascertained at the time of the slander could bear on the Goodenough suit. That was not what he wanted the books for. He wanted to spread these accusations of fraud in the Book Concern. On the morning after the affidavits had been served on us, before

BASE-BALL.

Mutual vs. Olympic—Another Victory for the Champions.

The Mutual Club of this City have now encountered every one of the leading contestants in the championship arena except one, viz., the Fort Wayne Club, and they have won every game except one, their only defeat being the one they sustained at the hands of the Haymakers of Troy. They first defeated the Haymakers 14 to 2; then the Rockfords 3 to 2; then 16 Chicagos 8 to 5; the Cleveland 10 to 6; the Boston 9 to 3; the Athletic 8 to 6, and lastly the Olympics 12 to 5. The last three games they played without SMITH in their nine. The game they lost was their second game with the Haymakers—22 to 10.

The attendance, yesterday, on the occasion of their first match with the Washington Olympics, was the largest seen at any Mutual game this season, fully 4,000 people being present. The weather was delightful, and the grounds were in splendid order, and as the Olympics were fourth their first struggle a close contest was expected.

The game began at 2¼, with the Mutuals at the bat, Mr. LENNOX, the captain of the Kekionga nine,—who were all present at the match,—acting as umpire, and he most ably filled the position, no dubious umpiring being seen on the part of that gentleman. First Mutuals went to the bat first, but they were unable to score at all until the third inning, when they began to bat in handsome style, and in three innings play scored 7 runs, of which 5 were earned. On the other side, it was not until the seventh inning that the Olympics were allowed to scores a single run, the support given WORTHINGTON's pitching being excellent, especially that of FRANKS and MILLER, who also played finely behind the bat. A muff by START gave them a run. In the seventh inning the Mutuals scored no less than 6 runs, of which but 2 were earned, the Olympics fielding loosely in this inning. This left the totals at 12 to 1, and those were the figures when the Olympics went into their last inning. By a dropped fly ball by START they escaped a whitewash, and afterward batted well for 3 runs, thus escaping a worse defeat than that sustained in Philadelphia. The final result was the success of the Mutuals by a score of 12 to 4.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

NEW-YORK.

In the Court of General Sessions, yesterday, before Recorder HACKETT, PHILIP J. DONNELLY, of No. 110 West-street, charged with dragging MICHAEL S. DALTON, and robbing him of $200, was discharged, the evidence being insufficient to sustain a conviction. PATRICK SHEARAN pleaded guilty to an indictment charging larceny, and was sent to State Prison for four and a half years.

Fifth, Sixth and Seventh avenues, in consequence of the excellent pavements recently laid, have become race-courses for several blocks south of Central Park. Every afternoon they are crowded with fast horses attached to light wagons driven at break-neck speed, and it is impossible for pedestrians to cross either of the avenues except at the risk of life or limb. Superintendent KELSO is to station mounted patrolmen on those avenues in sufficient force to bring them back to their legitimate use.

JOSEPH and CYRILLE DION last evening gave an exhibition game of billiards at CHAS. FRINK'S saloon, Exchange-place, Jersey City. The first game played was between Hon. W. L. ROWE and JOSEPH DION, 500 points, at the four-ball balance. DION won by a score of 501 to 69, making runs of 79 and 135, and an average of 33.3. The next game was between CYRILLE DION and CHAS. FRINK, formerly champion of Michigan, 1,000 points. DION won, the score being 1,002 to 372. The winner's average was 39 14-19; the loser's, 30%.

JOHN GILLESPIE, late an officer of the Ninth Precinct, was put forward in the Court of General Sessions yesterday under three separate charges, one of assault and battery, another of feloniously assaulting Councilman WALTER W. LENOT, and also of being concerned in the robbery of ALBERT J. CROWELL. He pleaded guilty to all the charges, and was remanded for sentence.
